CITY ITEMS.

METEOROLOGICAL REGISTER Arms Showers -Thunder and lightning is getting fashionable now a days. We had another spleedid exhibition of it last evening at 5 o'clock, scoompanied with wind and rain enough to save one night's labor of the stree sweepers. The day had been war n-yes, hot and toward night growing a little cool-r. the world west out to breathe Didn't they run? The storm came suddenly; few looked for it until it was upon them. In five mountes from the first ery, we could see nothing—the atmosphere was a sheet of inty water. As it fed upon the ground it rolled along by fore the wind like waves up n the beach. Nearly all the public buildings in the City had their flags flying at half must, as a token of remembrance of the noble band of Firemen who perished on Tuesday evening. Several of these were torn from their poles, and others fluuered and whip ped themselves into strings in a sort of mad agony. So dense was the water in the air that we could not see from The Tribune Office across the Park to read the signs in Broadway. We could only see the gas lights flashing up broadway. We could only see the gas lights flashing up here and there, where the sudden darkness which over-spread the earth rend-red it necessary. The stage drivers had a time—such a time. There was no heading against the fury of the driving blast. Those bound dewnward could not go Those going up, could not stop Tae thousands of pedestrians went somewhere, but where they do the street is full-you see them waiting, lounging, standing -then you see them ruu-how they did run last night and then you don't see them at all they are gone Once in a while a fellow with an umbrolla thinks he will not give up and go under shelter. We saw several of them yesterday. For a while they managed to keep the force of the storm off of their heads, but the wind drove the rain upon their heels below the umbrelia with the form of a catanact. Pretty soon the wind grew stronger, and away went one umbiella scudding before the wind, onward and upward like a storm tossed balloon "Ha, na!" shouted another, as he looked at the astonished umbralla victim: You didn't hold on. You must hold her lin such a win't "as this" The speaker die hold, but he looked very much astonished when his own shield turned wrong side out, and left him as shelteriess as though he only held in his hand a walking stick. The amusing states of such a storm aschis in the city are enough to stir the risibilities of a defeated of fice seeker. Sometimes a dozen or twenty men take shelter under an awning, which is the midst of the storm takes to itself wings and flies across the street, leaving a very foolish set of bipeds standing shelterless upon the pavement. Ab well they were no worse off than some thousands every day in the City—they are always sheltertess, except while they borrow a temporary covering for their heads, which some sudden gust of misfortune turns wrong side out like the umbrella, or a severe storm blows away like the vast awaing, and then-see how they hudd'e and pack the nselves into the recess of your doorway. It was dry there a min ute ago - now the wind comes round the corner, and they are all dripping wet. Now see them soud away for home or some other shelter, as the storm julis a little. It was time : for here comes the rain again. How it does thunder and how the lightning sends its red streams of fire across the darkning sky! This is an April shower, a healthy, in the birds sing to day in the country! -By the way we shall hardly have a spring this year Summer is starting full fl-dged from the arms of Winter, like Unicorn from the brain of Jove. The gradual and doubtful progress of warmth from the equinox to May day, has not advened. We have had none of the snany days and frosty nights, the cold rains and warm clearings, which usually struggle for mastery through April. Wioter held undisputed sway until last week, and now Summer scoms almost enthroned. The sudden transition serrously afflicts the undershirted, overcosted, thick booted citizens, and they pant and sweat like July when they least expected i Well, let summer come, with its lightning and thunder and sudden showers. Winter has dealt severely with us, and his usurpation of two months of Spring may be forgiven and forgotten if be has finally distressed us with his "last appearance for the season."

-The storm continued until after midnight. At 1] A M the rain had ceased, and the wind was blowing fresh. The lightning was almost incessant for six hours.

Moving .- Symptoms of the ussal vernal hegira are manifest about town. The ladies, resolved into a committee of the whole, have been instituting a search—looking into each other's parlors, pantries and kitchens, fluding out who everybody is, what everybody has, how everybody lives How things looked, furnished a delectable theme for convesation, and "do tells," "you can't thinks," and " i decisres, are formulas in great demand just now. Carpets begin to come up, curaics to come down, and busiling housekeepers are in their glory; cap borders flaring, cap strings flying away they go, from garret to basement, like the mercury in changeable weather. If it's not moving, why then, it's cleaning, and quiet mes have no peace of their lives. Closets are raneacked, their contents tumbled out into broad daylight, dust rises, water falls, seapsuds foam: the subterrenean forces venture boldly up; you meet them on breaking into another. You step upon something yielding you think it's the lap-dog; you jump speemodically; you almost hear a yelp; you look down, and it ere it is -a damp mop, "and nothing more" You enter your room-your own private sanctum, ever held sacred from the intrusion of all outside barbarians, save under a strict ' statute of bimitations." The enemy are in possession : they thought you had gone to Providence; providentially you are there in the nick of time. There is a rousing fire in the grate and through the bars you see the charred ends of a haif dozen of your old love letters: they are ! arning up your papers! They have just tumbled your boots, your pers, your trunks, your costs, your unnameables and indescribables, into one grand beap upon the floor, and the whilem well filled closet is as empty as a friar's cell. Papers and letters litter "where a" carpet "has been," and a smiling, red-fingered Milesian is in the act of claving them up into a backet as you enter. They have you at an advantage: you are defeated—in fact, hors de combat You can't help it; you are sehamed to fly into a passion you know, at least you think you know, these things must be done, and you are dumb. As you retreat you stumble over a pail of whitewash into the extended arms of an "Uncle Tom:" you meet a recruit just coming to the res eue, swaying a broom, that mighty symbol of domestic power. There is nothing for it but to fly incontinently, and away you go. But the grand movement of crookery and kettles, mirrors and mabogany, is yet to come-when the Penate shall be brought forth, borne a little way, to be sgain set up in a new shrine. Household gods jostle bonschold gods en route draymen are in their glory, while all around, in cellar and garret, and brown stone front, the rents go sublimely up.

HEALTH OF JUDGE MORRIS -The health of Judge M has become so much improved that he paid a visit yester-day to the Court rooms, and felt so well that he talked of resuming, in some degree, official business, but was for the present dissuaded from it. It will probably be three or four weeks before he will be strong enough fully to resume the duties of the bench.

BIRDS AND FLOWERS -- Who says that we shall not been the songs of the spring birds amid the blooming flowers of these summer days? Barnum and the New York Horsicultural Society say we shall. True, the flowers will be in boxes and the birds in cages, but they will sing, and the flowers will give their sweet arcms to the city air. True, it will not be like the song of the meadow lark, or the twitter of bobolink in the field, or the thrush in the thorn bush, but it will be the song of birds, and we shall see and feel the influence of the beauty of the flowers. There is something good something refining in the very name of an exhibition of "singing birds and flowers" comething in the reality that will do good, for it is one of the schools of civilization. If a woman loved flowers she has one good trait in her heart. Teach a child to love flowers and you will give that child a good heart. Take your children to look at the birds and flowers, and you will not only give them pleasure but do them good. What if they should say "Oh mother, I wish I could let the poor "little birds out of their cages; I do not like to see them in slavery."

Ab He! there is a chord touched there. Let it vibrate. Half the world are slaves Some to their fellow mes; some to their mot ey-bags; some to their fashionable neighbors; many to their bass appetites; all to sin. Some are shut up in cages like the birds; but they do not sing, they come—they were not sugget in their youth to pity the caged birds and they never loved flowers.

The Stock market was not very active this morning, but generally the feeling was good and quotations worked upward. The Learness Times says

Throughout the past week very few incidents of interest to the commercial readers have transpired, the only feature of importance being the Chancellor of the Bushaquer's statement on the condition of the public balance. Although Mr Gladstone's plans are not as yet fully explained, it appears evident that the Government contemplate during the present session to add, in some manner, to the funded or unfunded debt, and so reader it uncessary for them to have recourse to the coffers of the Bank of England. General satisfaction is expressed by capitalists at this measure, as it is exceedingly desirable in a period of war to keep a good balance on hands for all contingencies. The vascillating policy of Prussia and Assertia, on the question of Ruesian aggression created almost a panic in the early part of the week, rom which, however, there has been a recovery. The leaning of both powers is evidently toward Russia, although the distates of policy point toward an alliance with the Western Powers, but there is little doubt that the first engage nont of the allied fleets or armies against the common neasy will cause a decided and energetic step to be taken by both Powers.

LAKE SUPERIOR MINES AND MINING PROSPECTS.

New York. Thursday, April 27, 1854.

To the Editor of The N V Tribuse.

Size: The last mail from Lake Superior has brought to us exceedingly good accounts of all the Copper mines in that region as far west as the Cliff, beyond which point we have received no advices, and the following extracts from our correspondence will, no doubt, interest a large portion of your readers.

CLIFF MINE.

Of this mine little need be said, but that it fully sustains its reputation as the riches; in the country if not in the world. A new pumping and a new holsting machine engine are in process of erection, and with these facilities, larger shipments of metal than ever before may be looked for. In fact, the mine never looked so promising.

for. In fact, the mine never looked so promising.

SORTH WESTERS.

This mine has greatly improved of late, several of our cerrespondents are of opinion that it is not inferior to the Copper Falls. The vein looks well everywhere. In the side is four feet wide and very rich. In the 30 fathom level the vein has been from eight to twolve thet wide all winter, and entirely strong together with Copper. A week or two before the mail left, in taking down a sit foot stepe the vein was so full of Copper that it could not be blown down.

In bringing up a shallow stope, they discovered a mass of about a tun, and the blast they put in to blow it down, uncovered another in the back above, double that weight.

They are not working a large stoping force, but wass they be, into take down Copper they will have no difficulty in obtaining a large amount. The stock should be much nigher than it is in market.

This mine is doing better than any one anticipated, the FULTON.

Looks remarkably well and will pro-Leoks remarkably well and will probably equal the Cliff before long. Many masses are exposed and the velus are remarkably rich. A belt of ground near the opening, running East and West, 100 feet wide, contains a great deal of copper, mars, barrel, and stamp work. MASITOU.

The winze on this mine is down 52 feet ; the vein is now

The winte on this mine is down 52 feet; the vein is now in two branches, one on each side of the winze, about 2 feet wide, and very rich in copper. The same vein is drift No. 1 is in two branches, and in the drift between them they are 3 feet wide, and as rich as in the winze. This drift is now in 363 feet, and only about 137 feet south of the shart runk last summer. No. 2 south drift is in 106 feet they have out several veins, feeders and branches all filled with copper; the largest is 15 inches wide. It only wants sufficient death driven on No. 1 vein to prove the mine satisfactorily. It will undoubtedly pay.

the mine satisfactorily. It will undoubtedly pay.

Has looked well all winter. The vein is very rich, and several small masses have been taken out. The voin is foun 14 to 16 inches wide, and contains an average of 50
P cent of Copper. Sales have been made, at the Lake, of the stock at 65, readily. There is no doubt of this being eventually a productive mine.

STAR AND COPPER HARBOR.

Enth doing very well, and much Copper will be taken from the mthis season. The Star is quite a "star" among POSTON AND LAKE SUPERIOR CONSOLIDATED.

There are two veins on this company's lands which have been traced over 300 feet by open cuttings, and there is over 2,000 feet more of the company's property through which by their direction they undoubtedly extend.

The shaft is down 70 feet—60 feet of that distance being in the rock. It is 5 by 8 feet in extent.

For the first 20 feet down, the vein is from 3; to 4 feet wide, after which for 35 feet the vein equals the shaft in bigness so that the banging wall is lost sight of in that cutting. In the last five feet they have again struck the wall, the vein being fully five feet wide.

It is thoroughly impregnated with shot copper through its whole width, and is very rich, and increasing in richness with depth. It is said to be superior to the Clark, though their show is excellent.

PORTAGE LAKE BIRES.

Lale Royale is the "big gun" of these mines, and improving very fast. Alblom, Montezuma, Webster, and Shelden—all of these improve with depth, and will in all probability do better this season than ever before.

This mine is also improving. They are now sinking on

This mine is also improving. They are now sinking on the eastern veins, and from present appearances there is a strong prospect of their proving to be the Isle Royale or Portage vein.

Portage vein.

BURON.

BURON.

This mine (formerly the Dodge) is opening splendidly, and the excitement is very great about in. Stock is selling at the Lake at 66 very readily. The veins show the assess good points as the richest of the shafts of the lake Royale and Portage at their opening, and there is no doubt of their proving rich and productive.

The above is about the substance of our information.

Very truly, yours, (By C. P. SURSEL)
